

7. Environmental Policy Statement

As a process manufacturing company Novograp are a consumer of raw materials, including energy, and a generator of solid, liquid and gaseous waste. We are committed to a proactive and practical environmental policy delivering measurable improvement in performance.

The primary objectives of our environmental policy are:

In partnership with our principal suppliers, we constantly seek ways of reducing our usage of raw materials, including utilities, and to re-use or recycle materials.

By a thorough examination of our activities and their impact on the environment the company will endeavor to minimise emissions and prevent pollution.

In consultation with existing and alternative suppliers we are seeking and assessing alternative materials to replace currently used, but environmentally less friendly, materials.

In order to deliver, wherever it is practical, on these objectives the company has made a number of commitments:

- Commitment to the ISO 14001:2004 standard.
- Thorough examination of our activities and their impact on the environment.
- Objectives and targets are established and updated as part of continual environmental improvement.
- Regular auditing of performance and emissions.
- Strict adherence to regulatory requirements through regular consultation with regulatory bodies to ensure compliance and up to date knowledge of standards. It is always our objective to strive to exceed any regulatory standards.
- Consultation with suppliers, customers and employees to promote our environmental policy.
- All major suppliers and sub-contractors are informed of our policy and similar environmental standards are encouraged from them.
- Re-cycling of packaging and other materials where practicable.
- On-going initiatives to reduce waste at all levels of the organisation (temperature control, "lights out" , input waste levels , process waste).
- Commitment of adequate resources, both human and financial, to implement and maintain this policy.
- It is our intention to continue to design and develop products and processes in line with this policy.
- Our intention is to make this policy statement available on our company website for ease of access.

It is our belief that a safe, healthy, sustainable environment is in the best interests of everyone, including business. We also believe that the environment is everyone's responsibility. We encourage all our staff, suppliers and customers to think the same way and to act responsibly for the good of us all.

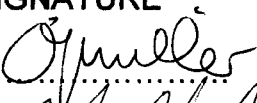

The Novograp Environmental Policy has been developed and approved by the company's management and has their full commitment.
